Statewide DV program plans Kayenta office.

Kayenta, Ariz. The biggest role for Leatha Martin, associate Director for Eve's Place, is supervising all the rural initiatives for its domestic violence program.

Martin often travels to the Navajo Nation, where two advocates, an attorney, and other positions will soon be hired.

Eve's Place will be opening an extension office in Kayenta in January.

In addition to overseeing the Kayenta office, Martin also mobilizes the volunteer efforts, recruiting and training at the Eve's Place office, which is located in Sun City, Arizona.

In addition to her busy schedule, Martin also coordinates valuable services for her clients.

"There is also a transitional housing program," Martin said. "Clients that stay at the shelter are on a temporary stay until they can get back on their feet so when they are ready to move on to relocate, we assist them."

Martin said she is looking forward to training six new employees that will be hired for the Kayenta office.

The new office is located at the old LDS Employment Resource and Seminary modular building neat the N.A.T.I.V.E. educational complex.

Eve's Place Inc. is a non-profit 501c 3 organization and has been opened for more than 12 years. Eve's place had provided and empowerment-based programs to victims of domestic, sexual and teen dating abuse.

Speeding and School Zones

Kayenta, Ariz. It is January and kids are headed back to school from winter break, it's cold outside, and parents bring their children to school to drop them off.

Speeding in school zones have been on the mind of a lot of parents here in Kayenta; there has been a remarkable amount of unsafe driving causing dangerous and reckless driving behaviors in school zones.

There are two school districts located on the northern edge of Kayenta Township; B.I.E. Education complex and Kayenta Unified School Districts. U.S. Highway 163 divides the two school districts. From the intersection of Highway 160, Highway 163 turns into a four-lane highway (See School Zone page 4) (School Zone Page 1)

Kayenta, Ariz. In 1980 the Mobilization Training Unit (MTU) CA-16 Los Angeles Public Affairs was the original 1947 Toys for Tots. Before they were decommissioned, they were responsible for collecting and distributing toys to the Navajo Indian Reservation, as well as other Native American tribes.

As the organization grew, they started the Toys for Tots Native American Program, based in Niguel; Ca continues to work under the Marine Toys for Tots Foundation of the United States Marine Corps.

The program relies heavily on volunteers. Marguerite Holiday, Coordinator for Toys for Tots, works with Navajo Nation Police Department, Kayenta District, she and other volunteers travel to different areas to distribute toys.

Holiday says she's been doing Toys for Tots for the past six years. In the past, the Toys for Tots used to travel to California to different USMC Bases and collect toys and bring them back to Camp Navajo, Arizona Army National Guard facility located near Flagstaff, Ariz. From there different Toys for Tots representatives will pick up toys and return them for distribution.

Her team covers sectors such as Cow Springs, Navajo Mountain, Inscription House, Shonto, Dennehotso, Mexican Water, Monument Valley community and Oljato.

All together they include seven chapters. According to Holiday, they provide (See Toys Page 3)

Tuba City, Ariz. January 12, 2017. Chapter Inauguration ceremony at Greyhills Academy High School auditorium. L-R., Kayenta Township Commissioners; George E. Sisco III and Edward Seaton Sisco and Seaton will be sworn in today as the newly elected Kayenta Township Commissioners.

Tuba City, Ariz. Grey Hills Academy High School gymnasium was the place to be on January 12, 2017, an anticipated event for the newly elected officials. We had the chance to catch up with the newly sworn in Kayenta Township Commissioners.

Three commissioners nominated and won the title for KTC Commissioners; George Sisco III, Jarvis Williams and returning for the second term Edward Seaton. On the forefront regarding their platform for Kayenta Township Commissioner's goals and objectives are developing economic Navajo Nation, Russell development for Kayenta Township.

Sisco in an interview mentions he would like to see more economic development for Kayenta Township. "If you look at how the community is being operated, you get a sense of growth. That is the my primary concern and mainly to protect the community for what it is and historically what our forefather dreamt of and put things back into place," says Sisco. He also added, "I want to see more programs, more growth and I want to see more economic development."

Jarvis Williams, who was later sworn in as Kayenta Township Commissioner says "I would like to see more emphasis on tourism in the area and work with local businesses to help bring more revenues for the community.'

The President of the Begaye mentioned in an interview "Congratulations to all the newly elected officials, starting out brand new today that got sworn in, also Kayenta, your new leaders are in place, we are excited about what's going to happen and for the whole region."

Currently, Eve's Place provide transitional housing to victims who are ready for their own residence and has introduced the concept of a mobile advocacy program for victims in 10 separate communities in the West Valley.

In 2015, Eve's Place expanded its services to the Navajo Nation we well as Quartzite, Arizona and Blythe, California. The expansion brings services to victims in their own communities regardless of their place in the healing process.

The non-profit has a goal of reaching 75 percent of domestic abuse victims who will never go or call a shelter program for assistance.

The mobile advocacy program can provide all the without the bed for any victims of domestic abuse.

In early September of last year, Kayenta Township approached Eve's Place to ask "Keep Kayenta Warm One Coat at a Time" coat drive campaign.

Eve's Place donated over 200 coats, jackets, sweaters and vest to be given out to the general public, especially those that were in need of a warm winter garment.

It took several days to distribute the coats.

Pearlena Chiquito, Program Manager from Kayenta Department of Aging also took some of the donated items and delivered it to the elderly at the services available in a shelter Kayenta Senior Citizen Center. "The coats went pretty fast," Chiquito said.

Most coat donation are from individuals outreach program and coat drive campaigns from the program to assist with the Maricopa County. Eve's Place relies heavily on volunteers to operate its thrift store in Sun City.

toys to approximately 500 children in the Kayenta Police District.

On December 10, 2016, several volunteers including Kayenta Volunteer Fire Department went out to different chapters to distribute toys as far as Mexican Water to Navajo Mountain, Ariz.

She says she made a lot of kids happy and "makes me feel like being part of the community and giving back." "Kayenta Toys for Tots organization thanks, all who donated toys, continuous support of local businesses and volunteers of Kayenta for the Toys for Tots campaign this year' says Chris Claw, Kayenta Township Volunteer Fire Department.

According to Claw, the organization provided over 8,000 toys to the local community and eight chapters.

Kayenta Township held their annual Kayenta Township Christmas Dinner on December 19, 2016, at Monument Valley High School Nash Centre. The Kayenta Police Department also along with other volunteers provided toys at the Christmas Dinner.

"There were so many wonderful presents for the children, their parents were appreciative," says Claw.

The annual Kayenta Township Christmas Dinner brought a lot of people from the surrounding communities.

for about two miles then it turns to two lanes.

While one travels on US Highway 163, they will not know there is a school zone until vou see a sign on the ground that indicates 15 mph speed limit, you can barely see it, in addition to added potential danger the flashing lights that are solar powered are not working. "The school zone light indicator have been out for quite sometimes and needed repair," says Tyler Glasses, Kayenta Township Project Coordinator. He says the signs should be corrected soon, once the parts are ordered the flashing indicator lights should be alerting drivers of the upcoming school zone.

Arizona Department of Public Safety estimates that most drivers are over the speed limit by ten miles per hour in a school zone, especially in the school district in Kayenta says Sgt. Robert Martin, ADPS. Martin says he is seeing more motorist speeding in the school zone recently. He adds he pulled over a driver going about sixty-five miles per hour during his patrol at the school district, which is fifty mph over the speed limits.

Recently, ADPS and Kayenta Navajo Police Department have been out and about patrolling these areas. According to Sgt.
Police says "visibility is important, once the motorist sees there are police officers out there they tend to slow down."

Not only are drivers going over the speed limit in school zones but they tend to rush inside school district says Dr.

Bryce Anderson, he says this is a major concern for the school district and also for pedestrians that are on school grounds.

Kelly Yazzie, BIE Maintenance with Kayenta Boarding Schools, says this is a big concern for those students that walk to school. Although the BIE Education complex is not too far from the main highway, he feels there should be more visibility with flashing signs and warning drivers of the school zone.

Kee Kescoli, Kayenta Operations Supervisor with Arizona Department of Transportation says to remedy this they have to place more signs alerting drivers of the school zones and also crosswalks in the area.
Kescoli says he will work on this immediately.

According to Norma
Bowman, Program Manager with Navajo Nation
Highway Safety says "we are working on changing the behavior of how people drive, we want to accomplish those goals through awareness and mainly through public service announcements and outreach programs."

According to Radarsign. com, there are two types of drivers; Autopilot and Distracted drivers. "During 'autopilot driving' drivers are most likely to have no recollection of how they got to their destination during regular trips on familiar routes. Distracted drivers are drivers operating with a slower reaction time further increasing the probability of tragedy in school zones."

There are three Speed Indicators powered by solar panels in Kayenta Township. Two panels are located on U.S. Highway 160 at the east and west boundaries. There is one panel located near the northern border of the township, located near the Kayenta Animal Care Center; travelers see them as they enter going southbound into Kayenta Township.

According to Tyler Glasses, he thinks placing another Speed Indicator sign near the school will allow drivers to slow down to the posted speed limits when schools are in session.

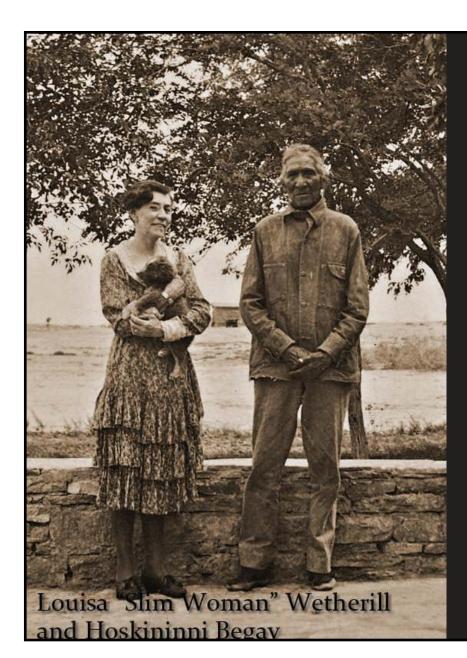

However, these signs can be costly he says. All in all, the BIE school district, DPS, Navajo Nation Police, Kayenta Township, ADOT, and KUSD are aware of these issues and want to ensure the school zones are safer for children and motorists.

the exhibit "On the Gleaming Way: Slim Woman and the Kayenta Navajos" at the Smoki Museum in Prescott, AZ. The mastermind behind this amazing exhibit was Harvey Leake, a Smoki Museum trustee and also the great grandson of John and Louisa Wetherill. John and Louisa (Slim Woman) Wetherill came to Kayenta well over a century ago around 1910 to open a trading post. They lived among the people of Kayenta and formed lifelong relationships with many people of the community and surrounding area.

Louisa was very intrigued with the Navajo people and she learned to speak Navajo to better communicate with the people. In doing so, she developed very close relationships with many Navajos that few non-Navajo people had at the time.

In the exhibit, there are many photographs of Louisa and items from the many people she interacted with during her time in Kayenta. Many and were very close to her personally.

One relationship in particular has she formed was with a man named known as "Wolfkiller". Over many decades Wolfkiller talked to Louisa about many things. He felt that the current youth at his time were going to lose much of the stories and teachings that were always passed on from one generation to another. Wolfkiller asked Louisa to document the stories and teachings he told her so that future generations could learn about what was passed on to him. Many decades later, Harvey Leake discovered some of these writings and published the book titled "Wolfkiller".

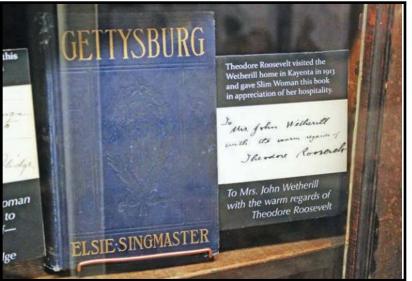

Harvey Leake is very proud of his family's history and the time they spent with the people in Kayenta and the surrounding area. He has written on the history, his family and the people of Kayenta numerous times and is an invaluable resource to the history of Kayenta. Harvey has also contributed many digital copied photographs to the Kayenta Township over the years. Many of these photographs are posted almost daily on the Kayenta Township's Facebook page as "Old Pic of the Day".

Shonie De La Rosa, the IT/Media Administrator of the Kayenta Township manages these old photographs as well as old film footage he has acquired over the years from the 1930's, 40's and 50's. Much of these film clips are also posted on the Township's Facebook page as "Old Film Clip of the Day"

Salt River Project, which manages NGS, recognizes the value of an educated and skilled workforce. It supports employee academic and professional growth through a college reimbursement program called the Tuition Assistance Program. It is designed to provide financial assistance with the cost of enrollment in college and university classes.

NGS has a mutual aid agreement with the city of Page and the National Park Service to offer assistance when either of their fire departments are dealing with an emergency and could use extra hands, he said.

"In the event that something happens, we're here, we're available for them," Roan said. "With the training that we get, I feel that we're available and we're ready for whatever call we get out there."

"SRP puts a lot of money into those people to get them trained to make sure that they work safely," Roan said. "That minimizes the amount of calls we get out here for emergency response or EMT calls.

The training ERT members receive builds upon NGS's first priority of safety and further implements the culture of its SAFE program:

Navajo Nation Special Diabetes Project and SPARKS Success Story by Marlene Valentine, Health Ed.

Monument Valley, Ut.

Tse'bii'nidzisgai Elementary School students have undergone periodic Body Mass Index assessment since 2014 to present Oct/November 2016.

As representative Navajo Special Diabetes Project, I have been going to the Physical Education Classes where these students participate in the Navajo Nation Special Diabetes Project sponsored SPARK activities.

Sparks is a researchbased physical education, after school, early childhood and coordinated school health programs serving Pre-K through 12th-grade students infused in a Physical Education program.

My primary stated goals with these students are to maximize their participation during the 45 minutes session, increase heart rate for at least fifteen minutes, challenge themselves beyond their current abilities, and learn to enjoy movement activities.

Over the years the collected Body Mass Index (BMI) shows positive increments in the healthy weight category for both male and female students. Back in 2014, Normal BMI of 5 to 85th%ile for boys and girls, respectively, were 38% and 58%. Currently, in Oct/ Nov 2016, Normal BMI of 5 to 85th%ile for males and females, respectively, are 53% and 68%. Likewise, the overweight (≥85th%ile to ≤ 94th%) during the same period show remarkable too, into the overall assessment results, I found they affected the trends. They skewed the percentage into the negative range (e.g., healthy weight percentage went down, and unhealthy weight went up).

These results show me that students use the active, healthy messages they hear in the classes and are changing their habits and lifestyle to prevent diabetes. FVRx Recipient – (3 years old) family enrolled since October 17, 2016, have made remarkable changes in fruit and vegetable consumption in a given week.

At the initial enrollment, caretaker and grandmother noted the family consumption of fresh fruit and vegetable very nominal (3yr old ate fruits once a day at "about one cup." 3yr old did not eat any fruits, or if she ate any it would be less than a half cup).

After two sessions, both child and caretaker reported consuming five times per day with at least one cup per serving.

This family has indeed utilized the information from the "Happy Homes" Curriculum and have supplemented their fruit and vegetable intake on a daily basis. 3yr old's body mass index is 18.156.

MESSAGE FROM KAYENTA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICTS

by Dr. Bryce Anderson, KUSD Superintendent

Kayenta, Ariz. Dr. Bryce Anderson, Superintendent of Kayenta Unified School District.

Kayenta, Ariz. Welcome to a new school year. As your superintendent, I am excited about our future as the Kayenta Unified School District and the great things that lie ahead of us.

As we begin the 2016-2017 school year, I want to thank you for being a valuable part of the KUSD family, and I appreciate your ongoing supportive involvement in our schools and the greater community.

Your continued partnership with our schools serves to further the quality of education our students receive and positively impact our community.

The Kayenta Unified School District is committed to continuous improvement, with a commitment to maximizing each student's potential.

We at the Kayenta Unified School District are fortunate to have a dedicated and highly capable group of teachers and staff who are committed to creating a learning environment where mastery learning is the expectation for every student.

Based on educational research, the most significant factor that impacts student outcomes is that teachers commit to implementing a guaranteed and viable curriculum to ensure no matter which teachers a given class, the curriculum will address certain essential content at a mastery level (Marzano, 2003).

One of the most critical areas of the teacher's focus is on maximizing each student's potential by providing a guaranteed and viable curriculum taught on grade level. "Guaranteed" means that all students, regardless of the teachers, will have access to the same content, knowledge, and skills across the grade level or subject area taught.

While the instruction may not be identical or scripted, teachers consistently and reliably address the same learning goals and hold the same expectations for student learning.

As a District, we are continuing to refine grade level expectations, create common assessments, and a focus on professional collaboration and coordination of knowledge.

"Viable" means that the curriculum is realistic in scope and that careful decisions have been made to narrow the universe of knowledge into developmentally appropriate and challenging learning targets for students.

The viable curriculum must be accessible to students along with reasonable for teachers to teach to mastery, not just "cover."

"Teaching on grade level," means teaching for mastery and to advanced concentrations in a way that students are readily able to connect their knowledge to real life experiences and apply it to different contexts.

Please get actively involved with your child's education and ask questions each evening about what they are learning in school.

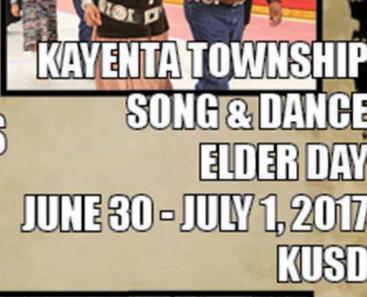

With your active involvement and a focus on teaching for grade level mastery, the 2016-2017 school year is sure to be an amazing experience for our students.
